Babble Best Picks: Baby Carriers

There comes a time in every parent's life when they're introduced to something so genius, so life-changing, that they simply can't imagine how they mustered through life without it. And that something is a baby carrier. Whether it's for closer baby bonding, hands-free convenience or an attachment parenting lifestyle, a baby carrier can be an essential baby product for the sleepless newborn days all the way through the heavy toddler years. You just have to find the right one for you.

To make your search easier, Babble tested dozens of baby carriers in every style imaginable — soft-structure, slings, wraps, backpacks — to find the best for your particular lifestyle.

I like this

While you probably won't want this to be your one-and-only baby carrier (especially for long-term wearing and lulling your newborn to sleep), this is a solid on-the-go hip carrier. It's small enough to stash in your bag, perfect for short errands with an older baby or toddler, and can even transform into a portable high chair and shopping cart restraint.
